INTRODUCTION

Just as you can pick up a pencil or pen and doodle or sketch on paper, you can draw using a Braille writer or a slate and stylus. Why not? Braille should not be mysterious, distancing, solitary, and foreboding. It should be filled with life, with action, with excitement. It not only opens up all the wonders of reading, but it can provide a valid expression of creativity and imagination.

Drawing can be a shared experience to be enjoyed by parents, friends, sisters and brothers, and teachers. This book contains thirty drawings with step-by-step instructions for Brailling animals, a truck, a train, a fancy heart, a friendly dog, a trumpeting elephant - all kinds of pictures. We call such pictures BRAILLABLES. Use them to stimulate interest, to decorate a room, to colour, to bring home to parents in the same way other kids bring home artwork from school.

Besides a Brailler or slate and stylus, knowledge of Braille letters and contractions is necessary. The letters and contractions form the lines, curves, and angles needed to draw. The result can be as simple or as complex as your imagination dictates. Soon you will not need instructions, you will wonder why you never thought of doing it yourself, and you may even forget that you did not think of it. But most important, is that you can provide a way of putting some fun into learning Braille, as well as developing concepts of space, form, of looking with both hands, of getting used to maps, charts, and all the drawings that are so necessary to a well-rounded education.

SO WHAT ABOUT DRAWING! Let Braille be a joiner, an opening, a creative tool, and a source of pleasure. Doodle with it, play with it, or treat it as a viable means of communicating ideas, fantasies, impressions, and creativity.
1. Sailboat

Directions:

1. Space, dots 4-5-6, CH.
2. Space, dots 4-5-6, space, CH.
3. Space, dots 4-5-6, space twice, CH.
4. Write ED, x four times, n.

The sailboat is a simple figure. It can be made as large as you want by using dots 4-5-6 for the mast, increasing the number of spaces by one for each line added. Make the boat length correspond to the width of the sail.

2. CHRISTMAS TREE

Directions:
1. Space four, AR, GH.
2. Space three, AR twice, GH twice.
3. Space twice, AR 3 times, GH 3 times.
4. Space, AR 4 times, GH 4 times.
5. Write AR 5 times, GH 5 times.
6. Space, AR 3 times, dots 4-5-6, l, GH 3 times.
7. Space four, AR, GH.

This frilly Christmas tree is drawn using 7 lines down, 10 spaces across. It can be used to decorate a Christmas card or a place mat. The contraction AR and GH form the top of the tree and begin the flaring out of the branches to the left and right. The next 4 lines continue the basic triangular shape of the tree with the branching out of each line. Line 6 brings the branching in on each side and the dots 4-5-6 and the letter l suggest a trunk. Line 7 completes the tree and flares out the trunk a bit. This is an easy tree to draw and a pretty one to look at.

3. Shamrock (1)

Directions:
1. Space, OW, o.
2. OW, o, OW, o.
3. Space twice, GH.

The shamrock makes a fine decoration for papers, for cards, or to take home to show parents. It is easy to do and requires very little skill. (See Fig. 3 for illustration of the small Shamrock).

Directions:

1. Write dots 4-5-6, EN, IN, EN, IN, EN, IN, EN.
2. Write dots 4-5-6, space 6, dots 4-5-6.
3. Repeat line 2.
4. Write dots 4-5-6, EN, IN, EN, IN, EN, IN, w.
5. Write dots 4-5-6
6. Write dots 4-5-6.

This is a flag blowing in the breeze. Dots 4-5-6 draws the staff, so you can make it as long as you want to. We used the flag for the Fourth of July, cutting out squares with flags in them and pinning them to tee shirts.

5. STICK FIGURES (man and woman)

Directions:
1. Space once, OW, o, space 3, OW, o.
2. Write e, w, r, i, space, e, w, r, i.
3. Space, dots 4-5-6, l, space 3, THE, z.
4. Space, number sign, v, space 3 times, dots 4-5-6, l.

This drawing has two figures in it - a man on the left, a woman the right. It uses 4 lines down and 9 spaces across. The two heads are formed with the contraction OW and the letter “o”. The arms of both the man and woman are raised up. The man has straight legs and turned out feet. The woman has a skirt made by using the contraction for THE and the letter “z”. Stick figures can be used in all kinds of drawings. They can hold flags, signs, stand on top of things- you'll find all kinds of uses for them.

This small teddy bear uses 6 lines down and 8 spaces across. He has two ears, two round eyes, a suggestion of a nose, and is sitting with his front paws up at his rounded sides and his back feet stretched out in front of him. He is cute and cuddly and has a bit of personality. He is easily recognized as a teddy bear.

5. Write v, IN, c, EN, 2 hyphens, number sign, 2 hyphens, IN, c, EN, number sign.
6. Space, e, hyphen, i, space 5, e, hyphen, i.

This is a side view of a truck wit a box-like trailer, a cab, a back and front wheel, and a light on the front. It uses 5 lines down and 14 spaces across. The idea can be expanded to make a school bus, using a series of contractions for (a full cell) as windows. It can be made more elaborate with the sloping hood and fancy windows of a car.

3. Write WITH, 10 FOR, OF.
4. Write 12 FOR.
5. Write d, ER, 8 FOR signs, q, f.

This spaceship takes 5 lines down and 12 spaces across. It has a roundness to its shape and almost looks like an ornament hanging in the air.

This train has an engine, a flat car, and a box car. The engine has smoke coming out of the smokestack and has a cow-catcher in front of it. Hitched to the engine is a flat-bed car, a box car with a roof and a door. With some ingenuity, this could easily become a modern passenger train. To draw it requires 6 lines down and 35 spaces across. This is a more difficult drawing to recognize tactually because it contains three separate objects, which are linked together. It is very easily recognized visually, and has a great appeal.
10. RABBIT (1)

Directions:
1. Space, s twice, WH.
2. Space, GH twice, AR, EN, IN, i, c twice, e, EN.

This rabbit takes 6 lines down and 14 spaces across. It is a side view of a bunny lying down with its ears straight up and its fluffy tail behind. The back is hunched up a bit in readiness to jump. We use it in our books as a symbol of intermediate work, jumping from easy material into what is harder and will bring us to more difficult material later.

This series of hearts interposed upon one another takes 30 spaces across, 23 lines down. It is frilly and delicate looking - a fancy heart for Valentines Day. The design is simple, but the lines are not easy to follow and take a bit of finger dexterity to identify. Spacing is important so that the hearts fit neatly into one another.

This teddy bear has personality. He has a gleam in his eyes, eyebrows, a perky look about him. You can add to him by drawing a bow for a tie. You can put a bow on his head and a flair of skirt around his hind feet and he becomes a she. We call them Guildabear and we take them around with us when we display our books. They have great appeal, good P.R.
Fig 18. Teddy Bear 2.
The Cowboy has a huge hat, a beard, a bandanna, boots, is holding his reins for his horse. His boot that is showing even has a heel. This side view shows the horse standing still with his head poised and his tail hanging straight down. They're ready to travel. In this figure, as in all other larger drawings, we deliberately attempted centring the drawing for better eye appeal, and in order to stress the importance of pictures looking attractive because of attention to such details. Because it is a side view, centring is more difficult. The figures are not mirrored, the same on the right and on the left, except, reversed. Centring, therefore, has to be calculated more carefully.

Now the bird is completed, sitting on a branch with its tail balancing it. This picture can be coloured red for a cardinal, if you like, or any other colour that suits your favourite bird. It is a pretty picture and shows details of the bird’s wing, and his delicate tail. You can be more creative about the branch he is perched upon, but we wanted to place emphasis on the shape and style of the bird itself.

The sailboat is easy to draw with its straight mast and its billowing sail. It is a good example of a picture that should be seen with two hands moving to get the idea of a continuing shape and an expanding image. Movement is introduced with the billowing sail and the waves in the water. Perspective is also suggested by the horizon of water at a different level than the bottom of the boat, making it apparent that the boat is closer to the viewer than the horizon. This is a nice picture to color - sky, water, sail, and boat.

The flag shows placement of the stars, represented by the dots. The stripes can be colored. However, the chief value of this drawing is to show what the design on the American flag looks like. It is an easy picture to draw - the spacing, however, was tricky to figure out.

The Country Gentleman was a drawing I took to Kentucky to show him off. The person examining him said, "I believe I know that feller!" You see him with his jug on one side, his rifle held in his hand on the other side. See the patches in his pants, his whiskers, his slouched hat. He was fun to draw.
